Dear Kirk:

There is attached a list of names given me by [REDACTED] of individuals residing in the Washington metropolitan area who have been made aware of your search and have expressed an interest. While the information given me does not so state, I would make an assumed judgment that they are all fully qualified in the stipulated languages. Unfortunately, no names of Arabic linguists were found.

The current rate range per thousand words for our outside linguistic contractors is:

My friends thought the attached booklet describing the National Technical Information Service of the Department of Commerce might also be of some interest to you.

I have now confirmed an appointment for you at 2:00 p.m. on Friday, 23 April, with Mr. Bush. I hope this is satisfactory.

Best regards,
